BIBEY MACHINE AND FABRICATION ANNOUNCES EXPANSION

Rockingham County, NC (November 22, 2017) — Bibey Machine and Fabrication is expanding its Rockingham County operation with the purchase of a 78,000-square-foot-building adjacent to its existing facility on Industrial Drive in Reidsville. The Greensboro-based company machines and fabricates metal and plastic parts for large consumer products companies, construction companies and other small businesses. The new building will provide more space for growth and will house its welding and finishing operations.

“The Rockingham County area has provided us with an extremely talented workforce demographic. Our expansion is the direct result of said talent. We look forward to what lies ahead,” said Laura Bailey, general manager of Bibey Machine and Fabrication.

“We recently purchased a Hypertherm XPR300 Plasma table that is six feet wide by 24 feet long, which enables us to be more efficient and improve the quality of our cuts on metals up to three inches thick. This new table, one of 15 in the US currently, pushed us to expand our operation in Reidsville,” said Linda Keaton, fabrication manager at Bibey Machine and Fabrication.

“We are excited and proud to see another one of our existing industries growing. We appreciate Bibey Machine and Fabrication’s dedication to and investment in Rockingham County and we look forward to the company’s continued success here,” said Jan Critz, director of the Rockingham County Center for Economic Development, Small Business & Tourism.

“Bibey Machine and Fabrication is an integral part of Reidsville’s industrial fabric. We are so pleased the company believes strongly in our City to execute this expansion project. They have been a leader in the Reidsville Industrial Alliance initiative and other community partnerships,” said Jeff Garstka, director of Economic Development for Reidsville.

Bibey Machine and Fabrication was founded in 1978 and now has three locations in Greensboro and two in Reidsville. The company opened its first Reidsville operation in 2001 and currently has 20 employees in Rockingham County. As a precision machine shop and fabrication facility, the company’s services include machine design, production milling and turning, welding, gear cutting, fixture and gauge design, and metal fabrication performed on state-of-the-art equipment.
